VIEWS COMBINE WITH CONCERN

Attorney General Says Money Trust Exists.

CABINET OFFICERS DIFFER

Secretary MacVeagh Does Not Agree With Wickersham's Findings Regarding Relations of National City Bank of New York and National City Company—President Taft Will Take Up Case Soon.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Attorney General Wickersham's report of his investigation of the National City bank of New York virtually charges the national city company, a subsidiary corporation, with being an embryo money trust, "controlled by the National City bank for holding stocks in other financial institutions in contravention of the national bank law."

Secretary MacVeagh does not agree with the attorney general and President Taft will take up the case when he returns to Washington. In the meantime the department of justice has been continuing its consideration of the case. The attorney general has stated publicly that he viewed with some concern the combination of banking capital in New York.

It seems to be generally understood in official circles that the government hopes to oppose successfully the connection between the National City bank and its company and that Attorney General Wickersham is prepared to back up his report if President Taft sustains him.

BLUE RUNS INTO MILLIONS

National City Bank Disposing of Financial Stock.

New York, Nov. 4.—It was stated at interests connected with the National City bank are proceeding to dispose of their holdings of shares in other financial institutions throughout the country. These holdings are believed to aggregate from 50,000 to 60,000 shares and probably include several foreign banks as well as a number of domestic institutions. Their value runs into millions of dollars.

It is understood that this step is being taken by the National City bank to overcome any further opposition or the part of the national government in connection with the organization of the National City company, a holding or securities corporation recently formed with a capital of $1,000,000, which was derived from a cash dividend declared by the National City bank.

IN ACCOUNT OF ILL HEALTH

Rear Admiral Bowyer Goes on Retired List

Washington, Nov. 4.—Rear Admiral M. Bowyer, U. S. N., has been placed on the retired list. Up to last spring he had been superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis. He was relieved on account of ill health.

LEARNS MOROCCAN TANGLE

France Cedes Germany Territory in Northern Congo.

Paris, Nov. 4.—The contents of the Franco-German accord, officially given to show that Germany recognizes the right of France to establish a protectorate in Morocco, while both nations engage to obtain the admission to the accord of the signatories to the Algeiras agreement.

France, as compensation for the German recognition of her protectorate in Morocco, cedes to Germany about 250,000 square kilometers in Northern Congo, touching the German Cameroons. The territory ceded is inhabited by about 1,000,000 negroes and is a commerce value at $2,400,000 annually.

France and Germany agree to submit to The Hague tribunal all difficulties arising from the operation of the accord.

ITALIANS SLAY HELPLESS ARABS

Terrible Stories of Atrocities in War With Turkey.

ENGLISH OFFICER PROTESTS

Lieutenant Montagu, Serving Voluntarily in the Turkish Army. Telegraphs Graphic Details of Slaughter of Women and Children—Declares Object of Italians Was Revenge for Heavy Losses in Battle.

London, Nov. 4.—The agitation against the atrocities by the British press and supported by a few members of the house of commons since uncensored reports arrived here from English newspaper correspondent concerning recent occurrences in Tripoli, received fresh impetus through a telegram received by a news agency from Herbert Montagu, a second lieutenant of the Fifth Fusiliers. Lieutenant Montagu telegraphed from Souk Yehna by way of Deibat, on the frontier of Tunis, as follows:

"I feel it my duty to send to you the following telegram and I beg you in the name of Christianity to publish it throughout England. I am an English officer now voluntarily serving in the Turkish army here.

"As you know already about the ferocious resistance which the Turks and Arabs are offering the Italians I will only express my admiration for their bravery and fortitude, which would warm the heart of any Englishman or of any true soldier in the world.

Brutal Slaughter of Innocents.

"Imagine my feelings when on entering and driving the Italians out of Arab houses which they had fortified and were holding we discovered the bodies of some 120 women and children with their hands and feet bound, mutilated, pierced and torn. Later on at (the name of the town was lost in transmission) we found a mosque filled with bodies of women and children, mutilated almost beyond recognition. I could not count them, but there must have been three or four hundred.

"In this European war are such crimes to be committed? Cannot England do something to stop such horrors? In our civilization and times you can hardly believe it, but it is true, nevertheless, I myself have seen it, so I know.

"The idea of the Italians when they slaughtered the innocents obviously was one of revenge for their heavy losses in battle.

"We are at this moment under a heavy shrapnel fire, so you must excuse me if these sentences are somewhat disjointed. There is also an aeroplane circling over our position and directing the enemy's fire on us."

Lieutenant Montagu's message is dated Nov. 2.

KILL FOUR THOUSAND ARABS

German Paper Has Account of Italian Atrocities.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The Lokal Anzeiger's Tripoli correspondent says Italy's losses in Tripoli since Oct. 23 amount to 1,500 men, of which 280 were killed. Eighty-seven soldiers are suffering from cholera.

"The Italians," continues the correspondent, "have executed 4,000 Arabs, including 400 women and children. Cholera is rapidly spreading among the Arabs and Jews. No room exists in the city for expected reinforcements and their arrival must further increase the ravages of cholera."

PLAN NAVAL DEMONSTRATION

Italy Abandons Intention to Occupy Turkish Islands.

Rome, Nov. 4.—It is understood that Italy has abandoned the idea of occupying one or more islands of the Grecian archipelago as a measure of ending the Turkish war and it now is considered that this would not bring sufficient pressure upon Turkey to compel to yield. It is more probable that a naval demonstration on the Syrian coast, with the eventual occupation of some point, will be decided upon.

JEWELRY SALESMAN ROBBED

Loses Suit Cases Containing Goods Worth Over $20,000.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Winfield T. Bliss, a salesman for a Chicago jewelry firm, reported at a detective bureau that he had been robbed of three suit cases containing jewelry valued at more than $20,000. He said he left the suit cases on a push cart, in charge of a man he had hired, while he visited a store downtown.

Four Killed at Crossing.

Paris, Ky., Nov. 4.—While crossing the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Hostone Crossing, in Bourbon county, Miss Lena Hughes, her sister, Mrs. Barton Harp, and her two children, Ruth and William, aged three years and five months respectively, were struck by a fast train and killed.

JOHN E. WILKIE.

Secret Service Chief Says Counterfeiters Are Active.

BAD MONEY MEN ARE BUSY

Greatest Number Arrested Since 1905, Says Chief Wilkie.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Counterfeiters were extremely active in the fiscal year of 1911. The annual report of Chief Wilkie of the secret service, just issued, shows that his agents secured $186,022 of counterfeit or altered notes and $20,275 of counterfeit coin during the year.

This is the greatest seizure within a decade, except the fiscal year 1910. Charged with manufacturing and circulating these imitations 409 persons were arrested, the greatest number since 1905.

The widespread growth of crimes affecting the currency, Mr. Wilkie avers, taxed the resources of the secret service to the utmost.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP MONTANA BANK

Fires Shot at Cashier and Carries Away $1,075.

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 4.—One lone robber wearing a black mask which completely hid his features held up three men in the First State bank of Hedges, Mont., and secured $1,075, after putting a bullet within an inch of John Dahl's head. Dahl is a bookkeeper in the bank. Cashier Peterson of the bank is also a United States land commissioner and was going over the proof of a claim by a homesteader in a room adjoining the bank when the robber entered the bank. Peterson opened the door and the robber shoved the muzzles of a couple of revolvers under his nose.

Peterson threw up his hands as directed. Then the homesteader threw up his hands and Dahl, who was at his desk, made a move as if to reach for a gun. There was a report and a bullet whizzed within an inch of Dahl's ear. He threw up his hands.

With the three men holding up their hands the robber told Dahl to step lively, open the money drawer and hand out its contents. Dahl obeyed. Then, playing his revolver in semi-circles, the robber backed from the door, ran to a horse he had left standing tied to a post, cut the strap holding the horse, swung into the saddle and galloped away over the hills.

STRIKE WILL BE EXTENDED

Boilermakers on Four Vanderbilt Lines Ordered to Walk Out.

Kansas City, Nov. 4.—Orders were issued from the headquarters of the International Boilermakers' union in Kansas City, Kan., for 400 boilermakers on four New York Central lines to quit work. The lines affected are the Indiana Southern, Big Four, the Lake Erie and Western and the Indiana Belt Railway company.

The strike is in sympathy of 1,600 other boilermakers who laid down their tools last Feb. 29, when piece work was installed on the Lake Shore, Michigan Central, New York Central and Hudson River, West Shore and Boston and Albany roads.

COURT LISTENS ATTENTIVELY

Arguments on Legality of Initiative and Referendum.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The critical manner in which the supreme court of the United States listened to arguments that the initiative and referendum method of legislation in this country is unconstitutional brought encouragement to the founders of the system. Arguments on both sides of the question were completed.

E. S. Pillsbury of San Francisco and R. R. Dunaway of Portland, Ore., were heard in opposition to the method in two Oregon cases.

No Verdict in McRee Case

Opelousas, La., Nov. 4.—Mistrial was recorded in the case of Mrs. Zee Runge McRee, accused of the murder of Allan Garland, the young Tulane university student. The jury reported it could not agree.

POVERTY OF CHINA

Misery of the Millions That Are Always Hungry.

GRIM STRUGGLES FOR FOOD.

Horses, Donkeys, Mules and Camels. When No Longer Fit For Work Are Turned Into Butcher's Meat—The Gleaners on the Sugar Wharfs.

Writing of the millions and millions of inland China, whose lives are spent face to face with starvation, Edward Alsworth Ross in the Century says:

"No natural resource is too trifling to be turned to account by the teeming population. The sea is raked and strained for edible plunder. Seaweed and kelp have a place in the larder. Great quantities of shellfish no bigger than one's finger nail are opened and made to yield a food that finds its way far inland. The fungus that springs up in the grass after a rain is eaten. Fried sweet potato vines furnish the poor man's table. The roadside ditches are bailed out for the sake of fishes no longer than one's finger. Great panniers of strawberries, half of them still green, are collected in the mountain ravines and offered in the markets. No weed or stalk escapes the bamboo rake of the autumnal fuel gatherer. The grass tufts on the rough slopes are dug up by the roots. The sickle reaps the grain close to the ground, for straw and chaff are needed to burn under the rice kettle. The leaves of the trees are a crop to be carefully gathered. One never sees a rotting stump or a mossy log. Bundles of brush carried miles on the human back heat the brick kiln and the potter's furnace. After the last trees have been taken the far and forbidding heights are scaled by lads with ax and mattock to cut down or dig up the seedlings that if left alone would reclothe the devastated ridges.

"The cuisine of China is one of the great toothsome cuisines of the world, but for the common people the stomach and not the palate decides what shall be food. The silkworms are eaten after the cocoon has been unwound from them. After their work is done horses, donkeys, mules and camels become butcher's meat. The cow or pig that has died a natural death is not disdained. In Canton dressed rats and cats are exposed for sale. Scanting a possible opening for a tannery, the governor of Hongkong once set on foot an inquiry as to what became of the skins of the innumerable pigs slaughtered in the colony. He learned that they were all made up as 'marine delicacy' and sold among the Chinese people."

"Another time he was on the point of ordering the extermination of the many curs that infest the villages in the Kowloon district because they harassed the Sikh policemen in the performance of their duties. He found just in time that such an act would 'interfere with the food of the people,' something a British colonial governor must never do.

"Though the farmer thrifly combs his harvest field, every foot of the short stubble is gone over again by the Kowloon policemen in the performance of their duties. He found just in time that such an act would 'interfere with the food of the people,' something a British colonial governor must never do.

"There are a number of miscellaneous facts that hint how close the masses live to the edge of subsistence. The brass cash, the most popular coin in China, is worth the twentieth of a cent; but, as this has been found too valuable to meet all the needs of the people, oblong bits of bamboo circulate in some provinces at the value of half a cash.

"Incredibly small are the portions prepared for sale by the huckster. Two cubic inches of bean curd, four walnuts, five peanuts, fifteen roasted beans, twenty melon seeds, make a portion. The melon vendor's stand is decked out with wedges of insipid melon the size of two fingers. The householder leaves the butcher's stall with a morsel of pork, the pluck of a fowl and a strip of fish as big as a sardine, tied together with a blade of grass. Careful observers say that four-fifths of the conversation among common Chinese relates to food.

"Comfort is scarce as well as food. The city coolie sleeps on a plank in an airless kennel in a filthy lane with a block for a pillow and a quilt for a cover. When in a south China hospital the beds were provided with springs and mattresses, supplied by a philanthropic American. All the patients were found next morning sleeping on the floor. After being used to a board covered with a mat they could not get their proper slumber on a soft bed."

India's Garrison.

India is garrisoned by 313,000 men whose duty it is to protect a territory of 1,773,300 square miles.

TAFT WILL VOTE AT CINCINNATI TUESDAY

President Will Then Get to Work on Annual Message.

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 4.—President Taft will get a vote at the Cincinnati and Hamilton county elections. For two weeks there has been doubt as to whether he would have an opportunity to cast a ballot in his home city next Tuesday.

The president sent his registration papers to Cincinnati too late and the election board decided he could not vote unless he appeared in person before next Monday night and swore that he was a qualified elector. Mr. Taft had intended leaving Hot Springs Monday night, arriving in Cincinnati early election day, but he changed his plans. He will leave here Sunday night, make the necessary affidavit before the election board Monday and be prepared on Tuesday to register his preference as a citizen of Ohio.

With the arrival in Hot Springs of Secretary Hilles Mr. Taft will have data which he expects to use in his third annual message to congress.

According to persons close to the president some of the important questions to which he will call the attention of congress are the tariff, the trusts, second class postage rates, stock watering and overcapitalization, conservation, currency reform and navy reorganization.

Application for the conversion of deposits into bonds must be made before Dec. 15 at the depository where the certificates were issued. These bonds will not be counted as part of the maximum $500 allowed to one depositor.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Louise Vermyla formally was charged with the murder of Policeman Arthur Bissonette by poisoning him with arsenic after the report of toxicologists who had examined the viscera of the dead roomer at the widow's home had been made known. Coroner Hoffman announced that he will have exhumed the bodies of at least two of the other eight persons who have died in her home during the last eighteen years.

Professor Walter L. Haines, Dr. Ralph W. Webster and Dr. E. R. Leconte reported to the coroner they found more than enough arsenic in the liver and other organs of Bissonette to have caused his death.

PASTOR DENIES HIS GUILT

In Letter to Congregation Richeson Expresses Confidence in Acquittal.

Boston, Nov. 4.—That some other man than his client gave Avis Linnell the poison from which she died was the assertion of John L. Lee of Lynchburg, Va., senior counsel for Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, Cambridge, who is under indictment by the grand jury, charged with murder.

The first authentic protestation of Rev. Mr. Richeson's innocence of the murder of Miss Linnell was made public when the text of his letter resigning the pastorate of Immanuel Baptist church was given out. The letter, dated Nov. 1 and addressed to Charles F. Cummings, clerk of the church, is as follows:

"I beg to herewith tender my resignation as pastor of Immanuel church. Strong in the consciousness of my innocence, and firmly persuaded that God in his own good time will lift this burden from me, I, nevertheless, feel that I should not permit the shadow thrown across my life to darken the religious welfare of my church and its people, whom I love."

Regulars Offer Little Resistance to Occupation.

COURTESY SHOWN FOREIGNERS

Chinese Soldiers Join Revolutionists and Police and Firemen Appear to Be in Full Sympathy—Arsenal Quickly Surrenders, the Capture of Which Was the Main Object of the Insurgents.

Shanghai, Nov. 4.—Except for the foreign concessions Shanghai is in the hands of the revolutionists who captured the city. There was practically no resistance, only a few shots being fired. All the Chinese soldiers have joined the revolutionists and the police and firemen are apparently sympathizing with them, for they are wearing white badges.

After taking over the arsenal the rebels burned the taotai's yamen in the native city. Every courtesy is shown foreigners. The soldiers, police and firemen are continuing on duty. Shops are closed.

While the action of the rebels was expected the movement was made quietly. After a slight disturbance in the northern section of the city notices were posted throughout the native city announcing that "the military government of China" had taken over Shanghai. It warned the populace against disorder.

The arsenal, where recently there had been the greatest activity preparatory to assisting the river forts and providing ammunition for the revolutionaries. The chief officials disappeared, but a few other officials continued to hold it. Without, however, any show of force. A few shots were fired, but the revolutionaries warned the officials remaining that they intended to take the arsenal even if they had to fight for it and the officials quietly evacuated.

It is understood that one reason for the revolutionaries taking Shanghai was that two Norwegian vessels had been loaded at the arsenal during the last two days with ammunition for Admiral Sah. These vessels succeeded in getting away.

London, Nov. 4.—The agitation against the atrocities by Italians in Tripoli, conducted by the British press and supported by a few members of the house of commons since uncensored reports arrived here from English newspaper correspondents concerning recent occurrences in Tripoli, received fresh impetus through a telegram received by a news agency from Herbert Montagu, a second lieutenant of the Fifth Fusiliers. "We are at this moment under a heavy shrapnel fire, so you must excuse me if these sentences are somewhat disjointed. There is also an aeroplane circling over our position and directing the enemy's fire on us."

Lieutenant Montagu's message is dated Nov. 2.

KILL FOUR THOUSAND ARABS

German Paper Has Account of Italian Atrocities.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The Lokal Anzeiger's Tripoli correspondent says Italy's losses in Tripoli since Oct. 23 amount to 1,500 men, of which 280 were killed. Eighty-seven soldiers are suffering from cholera.

"The Italians," continues the correspondent, "have executed 4,000 Arabs, including 400 women and children. Cholera is rapidly spreading among the Arabs and Jews. No room exists in the city for expected reinforcements and their arrival must further increase the ravages of cholera."

PLAN NAVAL DEMONSTRATION

Italy Abandons Intention to Occupy Turkish Islands.

Rome, Nov. 4.—It is understood that Italy has abandoned the idea of occupying one or more islands of the Grecian archipelago as a measure of giving the Turkish war and it now is considered that this would not bring sufficient pressure upon Turkey to compel to yield. It is more probable that a naval demonstration on the Syrian coast, with the eventual occupation of some point, will be decided upon.

JEWELRY SALESMAN ROBBED

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Winfield T. Bliss, a salesman for a Chicago jewelry firm, reported at a detective bureau that he had been robbed of three suit cases containing jewelry valued at more than $20,000. He said he left the suit cases on a push cart, in charge of a man he had hired, while he visited a store downtown.

JOHN E. WILKIE.
Secret Service Chief Says Counterfeiters Are Active.

BAD MONEY MEN ARE BUSY

Greatest Number Arrested Since 1905, Says Chief Wilkie.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Counterfeiters were extremely active in the fiscal year of 1911. The annual report of Chief Wilkie of the secret service, just issued, shows that his agents secured $186,022 of counterfeit or altered notes and $20,275 of counterfeit coin during the year.

This is the greatest seizure within a decade, except the fiscal year 1910. Charged with manufacturing and circulating these imitations 409 persons were arrested, the greatest number since 1905.

The widespread growth of crimes affecting the currency, Mr. Wilkie avers, taxed the resources of the secret service to the utmost.

LONE BANDIT HOLDS UP MONTANA BANK

Fires Shot at Cashier and Carries Away $1,075.

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 4.—One lone robber wearing a black mask which completely hid his features held up three men in the First State bank of Hedges, Mont., and secured $1,075, after putting a bullet within an inch of John Dahl's head. Dahl is a book-keeper in the bank. Cashier Peterson of the bank is also a United States land commissioner and was going over the proof of a claim by a homesteader in a room adjoining the bank when the robber entered the bank. Peterson opened the door and the robber shoved the muzzles of a couple of revolvers under his nose.

Peterson threw up his hands as directed. Then the homesteader threw up his hands and Dahl, who was at his desk, made a move as if to reach for a gun. There was a report and a bullet whizzed within an inch of Dahl's ear. He threw up his hands.

With the three men holding up their hands the robber told Dahl to step lively, open the money drawer and hand out its contents. Dahl obeyed. Then, playing his revolver in semicircles, the robber backed from the door, ran to a horse he had left standing tied to a post, cut the strap holding the horse, swung into the saddle and galloped away over the hills.

Kansas City, Nov. 4.—Orders were issued from the headquarters of the International Boilermakers' union in Kansas City, Kan., for 400 boilermakers on four New York Central lines to quit work. The lines affected are the Indiana Southern, Big Four, the Lake Erie and Western and the Indiana Belt Railway company.

The strike is in sympathy of 1,600 other boilermakers who laid down their tools last Feb. 29, when piece work was installed on the Lake Shore, Michigan Central, New York Central and Hudson River, West Shore and Boston and Albany roads.

COURT LISTENS ATTENTIVELY

Arguments on Legality of Initiative and Referendum.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The critical manner in which the supreme court of the United States listened to arguments that the initiative and referendum method of legislation in this country is unconstitutional brought encouragement to the founders of the system. Arguments on both sides of the question were completed.

E. S. Pillsbury of San Francisco and R. R. Dunaway of Portland, Ore., were heard in opposition to the method in two Oregon cases.

No Verdict in McRee Case

POVERTY OF CHINA

Misery of the Millions That Are Always Hungry.

GRIM STRUGGLES FOR FOOD.

Horses, Donkeys, Mules and Camels. When No Longer Fit For Work Are Turned Into Butcher's Meat—The Gleaners on the Sugar Wharfs.

Writing of the millions and millions of inland China, whose lives are spent face to face with starvation, Edward Alsworth Ross in the Century says:

"No natural resource is too trifling to be turned to account by the teeming population. The sea is raked and strained for edible plunder. Seaweed and kelp have a place in the larder. Great quantities of shellfish no bigger than one's finger nail are opened and made to yield a food that finds its way far inland. The fungus that springs up in the grass after a rain is eaten. Fried sweet potato vines furnish the poor man's table. The road side ditches are bailed out for the sake of fishes no longer than one's finger. Great panniers of strawberries, half of them still green, are collected in the mountain ravines and offered in the markets. No weed or stalk escapes the bamboo rake of the autumnal fuel gatherer. The grass tufts on the rough slopes are dug up by the roots. The sickle reaps the grain close to the ground, for straw and chaff are needed to burn under the rice kettle. The leaves of the trees are a crop to be carefully gathered. One never sees a rotting stump or a mossy log. Bundles of brush carried miles on the human back heat the brick kiln and the potter's furnace. After the last trees have been taken the far and forbidding heights are scaled by lads with ax and mattock to cut down or dig up the seedlings that if left alone would reclothe the devastated ridges.

"The cuisine of China is one of the great toothsome cuisines of the world, but for the common people the stomach and not the palate decides what shall be food. The silkworms are eaten after the cocoon has been unwound from them. After their work is done horses, donkeys, mules and camels become butcher's meat. The cow or pig that has died a natural death is not disdained. In Canton dressed rats and cats are exposed for sale. Scouting a possible opening for a tannery, the governor of Hongkong once set on foot an inquiry as to what became of the skins of the innumerable pigs slaughtered in the colony. He learned that they were all made up as 'marine delicacy' and sold among the Chinese.

"Another time he was on the point of ordering the extermination of the many curs that infest the villages in the Kowloon district because they harassed the Sikh policemen in the performance of their duties. He found just in time that such an act would 'interfere with the food of the people,' something a British colonial governor must never do.

"Though the farmer thriftily combs his harvest field, every foot of the short stubble is gone over again by poor women and children, who are content if in a day's gleanings they can gather a handful of wheat heads to keep them alive on the morrow. On the Hongkong water front the path of the coolies carrying produce between warehouse and junk is lined with tattered women, most of them with a baby on the back. Where bags of beans or rice are in transit a dozen wait with basket and brush to sweep up the grains dropped from the sacks. On a wharf where crude sugar is being repacked squat sixty women scraping the inside of the discarded sacks, while others run by the bearer, if his sack leaks a little, to catch the particles as they fall. When sugar is being unloaded a mob of gleaners swarm upon the lighter the moment the last sack leaves and eagerly scrape from the gangplank and the deck the sugar mixed with dirt that for two hours has been trampled into a muck by the bare feet of two-score coolies trotting back and forth across a dusty road.

"There are a number of miscellaneous facts that hint how close the masses live to the edge of subsistence. The brass cash, the most popular coin in China, is worth the twentieth of a cent; but, as this has been found too valuable to meet all the needs of the people, oblong bits of bamboo circulate in some provinces at the value of half a cash.

"Incredibly small are the portions prepared for sale by the huckster. Two cubic inches of bean curd, four walnuts, five peanuts, fifteen roasted beans, twenty melon seeds, make a portion. The melon vendor's stand is decked out with wedges of insipid melon the size of two fingers. The householder leaves the butcher's stall with a morsel of pork, the pluck of a fowl and a strip of fish as big as a sardine, tied together with a blade of grass. Careful observers say that four-fifths of the conversation among common Chinese relates to food.

"Comfort is scarce as well as food. The city coolie sleeps on a plank in an airless kennel in a filthy lane with a block for a pillow and a quilt for a cover. When in a south China hospital the beds were provided with springs and mattresses, supplied by a philanthropic American, all the patients were found next morning sleeping on the floor. After being used to a board covered with a mat they could not get their proper slumber on a soft bed."

TAFT WILL VOTE AT CINCINNATI TUESDAY

President Will Then Get to Work on Annual Message.

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 4.—President Taft will get a vote at the Cincinnati and Hamilton county elections. For two weeks there has been doubt as to whether he would have an opportunity to cast a ballot in his home city next Tuesday.

The president sent his registration papers to Cincinnati too late and the election board decided he could not vote unless he appeared in person before next Monday night and swore that he was a qualified elector. Mr. Taft had intended leaving Hot Springs Monday night, arriving in Cincinnati early election day, but he changed his plans. He will leave here Sunday night, make the necessary affidavit before the election board Monday and be prepared on Tuesday to register his preference as a citizen of Ohio.

With the arrival in Hot Springs of Secretary Hilles Mr. Taft will have data which he expects to use in his third annual message to congress.

According to persons close to the president some of the important questions to which he will call the attention of congress are the tariff, the trusts, second class postage rates, stock watering and overcapitalization, conservation, currency reform and navy reorganization.

Coroner Hoffman announced that he will have exhumed the bodies of at least two of the other eight persons who have died in her home during the last eighteen years.

Professor Walter L. Haines, Dr. Ralph W. Webster and Dr. E. R. LeCount reported to the coroner they found more than enough arsenic in the liver and other organs of Bissonette to have caused his death.

REBEL FORCES TAKE SHANGHAI

PASTOR DENIES HIS GUILT

In Letter to Congregation Richeson Expresses Confidence in Acquittal.

Boston, Nov. 4.—That some other man than his client gave Avis Linnell the poison from which she died was the assertion of John L. Lee of Lynchburg, Va., senior counsel for Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, Cambridge, who is under indictment by the grand jury, charged with murder.

The first authentic protestation of Rev. Mr. Richeson's innocence of the murder of Miss Linnell was made public when the text of his letter resigning the pastorate of Immanuel Baptist church was given out. The letter, dated Nov. 1 and addressed to Charles F. Cummings, clerk of the church, is as follows:

"I beg to herewith tender my resignation as pastor of Immanuel church. Strong in the consciousness of my innocence, and firmly persuaded that God in his own good time will lift this burden from me, I nevertheless, feel that I should not permit the shadow thrown across my life to darken the religious welfare of my church and its people, whom I love.

Regulars Offer Little Resistance to Occupation.

Chinese Soldiers Join Revolutionists and Police and Firemen Appear to Be in Full Sympathy—Arsenal Quickly Surrenders, the Capture of Which Was the Main Object of the Insurgents.

Shanghai, Nov. 4.—Except for the foreign concessions Shanghai is in the hands of the revolutionists who captured the city. There was practically no resistance, only a few shots being fired. All the Chinese soldiers have joined the revolutionists and the police and firemen are apparently sympathizing with them, for they are wearing white badges.

After taking over the arsenal the rebels burned the taotai's yamen in the native city. Every courtesy is shown foreigners. The soldiers, police and firemen are continuing on duty. Shops are closed.

While the action of the rebels was expected the movement was made quietly. After a slight disturbance in the northern section of the city notices were posted throughout the native city announcing that "the military government of China" had taken over Shanghai. It warned the populace against disorder.

The arsenal, where recently there had been the greatest activity preparatory to assisting the up river forts and providing ammunition for Admiral Sah, was called on to surrender by the revolutionaries. The chief officials disappeared, but a few other officials continued to hold it. Without, however, any show of force. A few shots were fired, but the revolutionaries warned the officials remaining that they intended to take the arsenal even if they had to fight for it and the officials quietly evacuated.

It is understood that one reason for the revolutionaries taking Shanghai was that two Norwegian vessels had been loaded at the arsenal during the last two days with ammunition for Admiral Sah. These vessels succeeded in getting away.

DRAFT CONSTITUTION QUICK

Put Through Single Sitting of Chinese Assembly.

Peking, Nov. 4.—The action of Prince Chun, the regent, in accepting on behalf of the throne the draft of basis of a new constitution for China is considered to show his willingness to grant any demand of the people which is supported by arms. An edict issued by the throne accepts a preliminary constitution drawn up at a single sitting of an assembly which refused to permit half its membership—those appointed by the throne—to participate in debate.

GRAIN FIRM IS INSOLVENT

Indictment Returned Against Head of Baltimore Company.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.—A receiver was appointed for Pitt Bros. & Co., one of the oldest grain firms here. The liabilities aggregate $168,000.

On the testimony of Henry B. Wilcox, president of the First National bank, and J. Albert Hughes, vice president of the National bank of Baltimore, the grand jury indicted Pembroke F. Pitt, senior member in the grain firm, on the charge of forging certificates or bills of lading. It is alleged that Pitt obtained nearly $500,000 in this manner. Judge Duffy fixed Pitt's bail at $25,000. He is believed to have left the city.

AGED COUPLE ASPHYXIATED

Waupun, Wis., Man and Wife Killed by Coal Gas.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Harkle, aged eighty-two and eighty-three years, respectively, were asphyxiated by coal gas at their home in Waupun. Their bodies were discovered by Mrs. C. D. Durand, a daughter.

The position of the aged man's body indicated that he attempted to open a window and fell to the floor. His wife's body was near by. The cause of the tragedy, it is believed, was a defect in the coal stove. The two were married fifty-nine years ago.

A MURDER CASE AS IT IS TRIED
IN AN ENGLISH COURT OF JUSTICE

Attention of American Lawyers Attracted by a Model One.

Disregard of Motive to Prove Commission of the Crime.

IN view of the several alleged murder mysteries now under investigation in various sections of this country and the number of recent sensational murder trials the comments in several of the leading legal publications in connection with the trial in England of John Alexander Dickman for the murder of John Innes Nisbet before Lord Coleridge, one of the justices of the king's bench, and a jury at Newcastle-on-Tyne, a report of which has just been published in the American Law Review, is of more than usual interest and instruction.

The American Law Review, the New York Law Journal and other legal publications commend the trial as an example to be studied and digested by American jurists and lawyers as an excellent method of conducting a murder trial in an orderly and speedy manner, free from waste of time and sensationalism.

They also call the attention of the lawyers and jurists to the freedom from technical artificiality, the spirit of common sense and the fairness which characterized the entire trial before Lord Coleridge.

The editor of the New York Law Journal says:

"It is desirable that members of the bar carefully read the report, noting particularly the attitude of the trial judge and the active part he took, as well as the co-operative spirit of counsel as officers of the court. Undoubtedly the presiding judge displayed more initiative throughout the proceeding and went further in affirmatively guiding the jury in his summing up than is customary in America or indeed than probably would be tolerated outside of the federal and perhaps a few other American courts.

"We believe, however," adds the editor, "that no unprejudiced lawyer could read this summing up without being impressed not only with the great ability with which the evidence was marshaled, but also with the fairness with which the issues of fact were actually left to the jury for their determination."

Example of Rapidity.

An example of the rapidity with which Dickman's trial was conducted, which resulted in a verdict of guilty, is shown by the following record:

The homicide occurred on March 18. After preparation for an elaborate case of circumstantial evidence the trial opened on July 4 and was concluded on July 7. The appeal from the conviction was determined by the court of criminal appeal dismissing the appeal on July 22, 1910. Consequently the trial lasted three days and the appeal was finally disposed of fifteen days thereafter.

The editor of the New York Law Journal also says:

"It was not assumed because the case was a capital one that the ordinary laws of thought and teachings of experience must be ignored and an adventurous importance attached to material flaws."

The editor of the Law Journal further says in his review of this great trial for murder:

"We believe this trial was fairly typical of criminal prosecutions in the English courts, and it is in sharp contrast with similar proceedings in too many American communities, where the mere machinery of the law is so abused as in a large proportion of the most important cases to defeat justice. . . . We trust that members of the bar in general either have read or will read the report of this English trial. The trial judge, while displaying abundant backbone and retaining a guiding grasp of the proceeding throughout, was courteous to counsel on both sides and scrupulously fair.

"Counsel for the defense did not quibble over trivial objections to evidence, but forcibly made every point legitimately to be urged in the prisoner's favor, as, for example, that he not only appeared as a witness on the trial, but that he had volunteered his services in the preliminary investigations."

Court's Surprising Charge.

During his summing up Lord Coleridge made a statement that may surprise some American criminal lawyers. He said that it was quite inaccurate to say that it is necessary in the case of a crime to prove the motive.

Here is part of the charge:

"At the outset I should like to mention and dispose of the question of the prisoner's means. It is quite inaccurate to say that it is necessary in the case of a crime to prove the motive. The facts in this case were abundantly clear it would not be wise for you to seek out to find a motive, but the prosecution allege that there was in the case of the prisoner an adequate motive. They say that plunder was the motive and the only motive for this crime. It is not alleged that the deceased man had any enemy, that he had done anything to mark him out for private vengeance, and it is in the fact that he was in possession of a large sum of money that you see the reason or motive for the crime which undoubtedly was committed. If the prisoner had been a man of ample means and if the facts were clear and proved that he was the author of the crime the apparent absence of motive would be immaterial."

In the case at bar the prosecution set up immensity and relied upon it as a motive for the crime.

In this connection the editor says:

"Motive is a disturbing element in the apprehension of actual murders and often leads to grave injustice to innocent people. If a mysterious homicide occurs the average mind immediately begins, although the circumstances disclosed are meager, to theorize as to the cause, and most people go a step further and convince themselves that their theory must be the true one. It is difficult for the mind to rest content with an uncertainty, no matter how clearly it be pointed out that the admitted facts are insufficient for certainty.

"Lawyers as well as laymen should cultivate the habit of suspending judgment. Usually in a murder mystery suspicion fastens upon the person against whom the most plausible motive may be brought forward. Not infrequently he is a member of the family between whom and the decedent there have been disputes about money affairs. The consideration of motive is, prima facie, so persuasive that one should constantly be on guard against unconditional surrender to it."

Fairness of Trial Judge.

Before the jury announced its verdict this incident took place, showing the extreme fairness of the trial judge:

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Gentlemen, before you give your verdict there is an incident in yesterday's proceedings which I forgot to allude to. Learned counsel for the prosecution commented upon the absence of the wife as a witness for the defense in connection with the allegation made by the prisoner that the wife had cleaned his coat. Such a comment is forbidden by the law to be made. I ought to have said, but it escaped my attention for the moment. I attach no importance to the comment, and I think I indicated this to you; therefore I forgot to add that such a comment made by the learned counsel ought to be banished from your minds and not to influence your verdict. If you allowed that comment to affect your minds hostilely to the prisoner I must ask you to reconsider your verdict, dismissing such comment from your minds. If you have not allowed it to affect your minds in any way then you can deliver your verdict.

The Foreman—It has not.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Have you allowed it to affect you?

The Foreman—We have not.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Then that question does not arise.

The Foreman—It has not been mentioned.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—I understand you have not allowed it to influence your minds.

The Foreman—We have not mentioned it.

The Clerk of Arraigns—You are all agreed on your verdict?

The Foreman—Yes.

The Clerk of Arraigns—Do you find the prisoner at the bar guilty or not guilty of willful murder?

The Foreman—We find him guilty.

The Clerk of Arraigns—That is the verdict of you all?

The Foreman—Of us all.

Story of the Crime.

This is the brief story of the crime. On March 18, 1910, John Innes Nisbet, aged forty-four years and a clerk in the employ of the Stobswood Colliery company, took the train to the colliery, carrying with him, as it was his custom to do once a week, a bag containing the wages to be paid to the workmen. At a way station a railroad porter discovered his dead body under a seat of the railroad carriage. A number of bullet wounds were in his head, and everything indicated a brutal murder. No trace of his assailant was found, but several weeks later one John Alexander Dickman was arrested on suspicion. After a long examination before a magistrate he was held for trial at the next assizes for Northumberland held at Newcastle-on-Tyne. He entered a plea of not guilty at the trial before Lord Coleridge.

The American Law Review devotes sixty-six pages to a report of this remarkable trial. In his sentencing of Dickman to death Lord Coleridge said in part:

"The jury have found you guilty of the crime of murder. In your hungry lust for gold you had no pity upon the victim whom you slew, and it is only just that the Nemesis of the law should overtake the author of the crime. The scales of justice are now balanced by the verdict which your fellows have pronounced—the punishment of death. I do not presume to judge you. I am nothing but the minister of the law passing sentence. I only do that duty which the law commands."

The condemned man exclaimed:

"I declare to all men that I am innocent."

After thanking the jurors the court excused them from serving as jurors during the next five years.

About Your Initials.

What do your initials spell? Some people have had queer experiences. Names like Arthur S. Sullivan are unfortunate. George (Henry) Augustus Sala preferred to make himself, like George Adam Smith, into G. A. S. Gilbert A. Becket, of course, was just G. A. B. Whistler for awhile dropped his McNeill, fearing the possible ridicule of J. M. Whistler. Henry Rider Haggard becomes very dignified as H. R. H.; (Henry) Austin Dobson refuses to be H. A. D., removing his first name, and Mme. de Novikoff, though no longer Olga Kireff, has become "O. K." forever.—London Chronicle.

Cables of Human Hair.

In North Japan is an enormous heathen temple, the timbers of which were hauled from the mountains and put in place with ropes made from the hair of the women of the province. HUNTING TRUFFLES.

In France They Train Dogs to Find the Prized Plants.

Truffles, like mushrooms, belong to the family of the fungi, but are a distinct and very peculiar genus. They are cryptogamic plants and subterranean, their position underneath the soil varying from two to three inches to two feet in depth.

They have no root, stem or leaf and vary in color from light brown to black. They are sometimes globular in form and vary in size from that of a pecan nut to that of a duck's egg. Their surface is watery and covered with a skin. Their exact method of growth is not precisely known. They are, of course, regarded as a great luxury by the epicure.

Truffles are mentioned by Juvenal, Pliny, Plutarch and Martial. The Athenian epicures were acquainted with them, and a story is told of a bon vivant who freed a whole family of slaves who had invented a delicious method of preparing them.

France has the credit of producing the finest truffles. Dogs are commonly bred to search for them.

The method of "breaking" these dogs is to give them for a time pieces of truffles every morning before they are allowed to partake of any other food. After a certain period, when their appetite for truffles increases, pieces are hidden in the ground, and they are made to find them. Thus they are gradually taught their business, though it often takes as long as eighteen months before a dog becomes skilled in the art.

In some parts of France—Poitou and Perigord, for instance—pigs are trained for truffle hunting, and by some they are deemed to be better fitted for this work than dogs.—Harper's Weekly.

SHE WAS LOYAL.

Likewise Honest Enough to Tell Lincoln the Truth.

During the war between the states Miss N., a high spirited Virginia young lady, whose father, a Confederate soldier, had been taken prisoner by the Union forces, was desirous of obtaining a pass which would enable her to visit him. Francis P. Blair agreed to obtain an audience with the president, but warned his young and rather impulsive friend to be prudent and not betray her sympathy for the south. They were ushered into the presence of Mr. Lincoln, and the object for which they had come was stated. The tall, grave man bent down to the little maiden and, looking searchingly into her face, said:

"You are loyal, of course?"

Her bright eyes flashed. She hesitated a moment, and then, with a face eloquent with emotion and honest as his own, she replied:

"Yes, loyal to the heart's core—to Virginia!"

Mr. Lincoln kept his intent gaze upon her for a moment longer and then went to his desk, wrote a line or two and handed her the paper. With a bow the interview terminated. When they had left the room Mr. Blair began to upbraid his young friend for her impetuosity.

"Now you have done it!" he said. "Didn't I warn you to be very careful? You have only yourself to blame."

Miss N. made no reply, but opened the paper. It contained these words:

Pass Miss N. She is an honest girl and can be trusted.

A. LINCOLN.

What She Wanted.

They had been married but two months, and they loved each other devotedly. He was in the back yard blacking his shoes. "Jack," she called at the top of her voice, "Jack, come here, quick!"

The Eyes of the Japanese.

A Japanese friend of mine once saw among my papers a picture of an Englishwoman dressed in Japanese clothing.

"She is no Japanese," he said. "She is European."

"How do you know that?" I asked him. "Her costume is correct; her hair is straight; she has no ornaments."

"Yes," he replied, "but look at her eyes. Her eyes look out on the world as though she understood it. The Japanese woman never looks like that."—From "England Through Yellow Spectacles."

IMMIGRATION
OF CHINESE.

Commissioner Keefe's Suggestions on the Subject.

SMUGGLING IS ON INCREASE.

Canada the Gateway—Keefe Would Register All Chinamen Now Here and In Future Deport Those Without Papers—Other Matters.

Commissioner General of Immigration Keefe in his annual report to Secretary Nagel has laid special stress on Chinese immigration, labor conditions in Hawaii and the present status of the international white slave traffic.

The business of smuggling Chinese into this country has been growing steadily in spite of the efforts of inspectors. Most of the Celestials are coming over the Canadian border. Owing to the length of the border, Mr. Keefe reports that it is impossible for agents to keep these activities within bounds.

Last year more than 8,000 Chinamen landed in Canada. A great percentage of these have entered the United States. The government has fifty-five cases in court at present, but this does not represent a fraction of the number who have entered this country.

The ease with which Chinamen can get into the United States from Canada has caused an increase of more than 100 per cent in the number of immigrants who have entered the Dominion within the past five years. Canadian statistics give 22,000 Chinese residents, although it is known that two or three times that number have entered the country in the past decade. The others have been smuggled across the American border.

Mr. Keefe advises Secretary Nagel that the only way to handle the Chinese situation is to register all Celestials now in this country, irrespective of the manner of their entry, and to allow them all to stay here. He suggests that congress then pass a law that every Chinaman found without registration papers be deported.

Mr. Keefe reports that more than 1,000 arrests have been made under the Mann white slavery act and that the government has been successful in stamping out the scourge in its most virulent form, but that the department needs more inspectors.

After a two months' trip in Hawaii Mr. Keefe made a report to Secretary Nagel on labor conditions on the sugar plantations, severely arraigning the large landowners for keeping the greatest part of the population in a state of vassalage. He will ask congress to take action to remedy the "commissary store" system, by which the underpaid laborers are deprived of their meager earnings by overcharges for foodstuffs.

POOR WIDOW FINDS $800,000.

Bonds Left by Husband Thirty-two Years Ago Thought to Be Worthless.

Securities which lay neglected for thirty-two years in an old trunk in the home of Mrs. Therese L. Janson in Mill Valley, a suburb of San Francisco, have been found to be worth $800,000. The papers are Mexican bonds. In the probate court Mrs. Janson has petitioned to reopen the estate of her husband, Charles J. Janson, to whom the wealth belonged, in order that steps may be taken to collect the money and distribute it according to law between the aged widow and her five daughters.

Charles J. Janson died on Feb. 2, 1879, leaving what his widow and daughters thought was a small estate all of which he disposed of by will

Mrs. Janson was named as executrix and in due time distributed what she supposed was the entire estate.

At that time she discovered among her husband's papers Mexican bonds but was told that they were worthless. She cast them aside and gave thought to the documents, mere keeping them as mementos. Mrs. Janson was in poor circumstances these years. Recently Mrs. Janson mentioned the papers to a lawyer friend, who investigated them and found that they had a cash value more than $800,000. In addition there is a large amount of accrued interest

A MURDER CASE AS IT IS TRIED IN AN ENGLISH COURT OF JUSTICE

Attention of American Lawyers Attracted by a Model One.

Disregard of Motive to Prove Commission of the Crime.

IN view of the several alleged murder mysteries now under investigation in various sections of this country and the number of recent sensational murder trials the comments in several of the leading legal publications in connection with the trial in England of John Alexander Dickman for the murder of John Innes Nisbet before Lord Coleridge, one of the justices of the king's bench, and a jury at Newcastle-on-Tyne, a report of which has just been published in the American Law Review, is of more than usual interest and instruction.

The American Law Review, the New York Law Journal and other legal publications commend the trial as an example to be studied and digested by American jurists and lawyers as an excellent method of conducting a murder trial in an orderly and speedy manner, free from waste of time and sensationalism.

They also call the attention of the lawyers and jurists to the freedom from technical artificiality, the spirit of common sense and the fairness which characterized the entire trial before Lord Coleridge.

The editor of the New York Law Journal says:

"It is desirable that members of the bar carefully read the report, noting particularly the attitude of the trial judge and the active part he took, as well as the co-operative spirit of counsel as officers of the court. Undoubtedly the presiding judge displayed more initiative throughout the proceeding and went further in affirmatively guiding the jury in his summing up than is customary in America or indeed outside of the federal and perhaps a few other American courts.

"We believe, however," adds the editor, "that no unprejudiced lawyer could read this summing up without being impressed not only with the great ability with which the evidence was marshaled, but also with the fairness with which the issues of fact were actually left to the jury for their determination."

Example of Rapidity.

An example of the rapidity with which Dickman's trial was conducted, which resulted in a verdict of guilty, is shown by the following record:

The homicide occurred on March 18. After preparation for an elaborate case of circumstantial evidence the trial opened on July 4 and was concluded on July 7. The appeal from the conviction was determined by the court of criminal appeal dismissing the appeal on July 22, 1910. Consequently the trial lasted three days and the appeal was finally disposed of fifteen days thereafter.

The editor of the New York Law Journal also says:

"It was not assumed because the case was a capital one that the ordinary laws of thought and teachings of experience must be ignored and an adventitious importance attached to its material facts."

The editor of the Law Journal further says in his review of this great trial for murder:

"We believe this trial was fairly typical of criminal prosecutions in the English courts, and it is in sharp contrast with similar proceedings in too many American communities, where the mere machinery of the law is so abused as in a large proportion of the most important cases to defeat justice. . . . We trust that members of the bar in general either have read or will read the report of this English trial. The trial judge, while displaying abundant backbone and retaining a guiding grasp of the proceeding throughout, was courteous to counsel on both sides and scrupulously fair.

"Counsel for the defense did not quibble over trivial objections to evidence, but forcibly made every point legitimately to be urged in the prisoner's favor, as, for example, that he not only appeared as a witness on the trial but that he had volunteered his services in the preliminary investigations."

Court's Surprising Charge.

During his summing up Lord Coleridge made a statement that may surprise some American criminal lawyers. He said that it was quite inaccurate to say that it is necessary in the case of crime to prove the motive.

Here is part of the charge:

"At the outset I should like to mention and dispose of the question of the prisoner's means. It is quite inaccurate to say that it is necessary in the case of a crime to prove the motive. Many crimes are committed apparently without motive. Many are committed with what appears to be an inadequate motive, but if the facts are clear the motive is immaterial. If the facts in this case were abundantly clear it would not be wise for you to seek about to find a motive, but the prosecution allege that there was in the case of the prisoner an adequate motive. They say that plunder was the motive and the only motive for this crime. It is not alleged that the deceased man had any enemy, that he had done anything to mark him out for private vengeance, and it is in the fact that he was in possession of a large sum of money that you see the reason or motive for the crime which undoubtedly was committed. If the prisoner had been a man of ample means and if the facts were clear and proved that he was the author of the crime the apparent absence of motive would be immaterial."

In the case at bar the prosecution set up impeccability and relied upon it as a motive for the crime.

In this connection the editor says: "Motive" is a disturbing element in the apprehension of actual murders and often leads to grave injustice to innocent people. If a mysterious homicide occurs the average mind immediately begins, although the circumstances disclosed are meager, to theorize as to the cause, and most people go a step further and convince themselves that their theory must be the true one. It is difficult for the mind to rest content with an uncertainty, no matter how clearly it be pointed out that the admitted facts are insufficient for certainty.

"Lawyers as well as laymen should cultivate the habit of suspending judgment. Usually in a murder mystery suspicion fastens upon the person against whom the most plausible motive may be brought forward. Not infrequently he is a member of the family between whom and the decedent there have been disputes about money affairs. The consideration of motive is, prima facie, so persuasive that one should constantly be on guard against unconditional surrender to it."

Fairness of Trial Judge.

Before the jury announced its verdict this incident took place, showing the extreme fairness of the trial judge:

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Gentlemen, before you give your verdict there is an incident in yesterday's proceedings which I forgot to allude to. Learned counsel for the prosecution commented upon the absence of the wife as a witness for the defense in connection with the allegation made by the prisoner that the wife had cleaned his coat. Such a comment is forbidden by the law to be made, I ought to have said, but it escaped my attention for the moment. I attach no importance to the comment, and I think I indicated this to you; therefore I forgot to add that such a comment made by the learned counsel ought to be banished from your minds and not to influence your verdict. If you allowed that comment to affect your minds hostilely to the prisoner I must ask you to reconsider your verdict, dismissing such comment from your minds. If you have not allowed it to affect your minds in any way then you can deliver your verdict.

The Foreman—It has not.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Have you allowed it to affect you?

The Foreman—We have not.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—Then that question does not arise.

The Foreman—It has not been mentioned.

Mr. Justice Coleridge—I understand you have not allowed it to influence your minds.

The Foreman—We have not mentioned it.

The Clerk of Arraigns—You are all agreed on your verdict?

The Foreman—Yes.

The Clerk of Arraigns—Do you find the prisoner at the bar guilty or not guilty of willful murder?

The Foreman—We find him guilty.

The Clerk of Arraigns—That is the verdict of you all?

The Foreman—Of us all.

Story of the Crime.

This is the brief story of the crime. On March 18, 1910, John Innes Nisbet, aged forty-four years and a clerk in the employ of the Stobwood Colliery company, took the train to the colliery, carrying with him, as it was his custom to do once a week, a bag containing the wages to be paid to the workmen. At a way station a railroad porter discovered his dead body under a seat of the railroad carriage. A number of bullet wounds were in his head, and everything indicated a brutal murder. No trace of his assailant was found, but several weeks later one John Alexander Dickman was arrested on suspicion. After a long examination before a magistrate he was held for trial at the next assizes for Northumberland held at Newcastle-on-Tyne. He entered a plea of not guilty at the trial before Lord Coleridge.

The American Law Review devotes sixty-six pages to a report of this remarkable trial. In his sentencing of Dickman to death Lord Coleridge said in part:

"The jury have found you guilty of the crime of murder. In your hungry lust for gold you had no pity upon the victim whom you slew, and it is only just that the Nemesis of the law should overtake the author of the crime. The scales of justice are now balanced by the verdict which your fellows have pronounced—the punishment of death. I do not presume to judge you. I am nothing but the minister of the law passing sentence. I only do that duty which the law commands."

The condemned man exclaimed:

"I declare to all men that I am innocent."

After thanking the jurors the court excused them from serving as jurors during the next five years.

About Your Initials.

What do your initials spell? Some people have had queer experiences. Names like Arthur S. Sullivan are unfortunate. George (Henry) Augustus Sala preferred to make himself, like George Adam Smith, into G.A.S. Gilbert A. Becket, of course, was just G.A.B. Whistler for awhile dropped his McNeill, fearing the possible ridicule of JAM Whistler. Henry Rider Haggard becomes very dignified as H. R. # CAREER OF LATE JOSEPH PULITZER

Remarkable Rise From Poverty to Wealth and Power.

OWNED TWO NEWSPAPERS.

thirteen Years After Landing at New York Penniless and Unable to Speak English He Was on the Road to Riches.

The career of Joseph Pulitzer, owner of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who died recently, was a striking example of the opportunities that have been found in the United States for advancement from penury and friendliness to wealth and power. Few who have come here to find their fortunes have been more handicapped at the start. He was without funds, had no acquaintances in this country, did not know the language and suffered from defective vision which harassed him all his life and made his last years, when he was compelled practically to retire from active work, even more handicapped than his earlier years. At thirty-one, thirteen years after landing at Castle Garden, he was the owner of a daily newspaper and on the road to riches.

Joseph Pulitzer was born in Budapest in 1847. His father was a business man, supposedly of means, but when he died, while Joseph was still a boy, it was found that the estate was very small. In order that he might not be a burden on his mother, Joseph determined to enter the army. He applied to his uncle, who was a colonel in the Austrian army, but when he was examined as to physical fitness he was rejected because of the defect in one of his eyes. He went to Germany and sought to enter the Russian army, but was again rejected for the same reason. He tried to enlist in France and England, with the same result.

The civil war was in progress in this country, and he decided to come here. He exhausted his resources to pay his passage, and he landed at Castle Garden in 1864 practically penniless. He knew nobody in this country and could speak only a dozen words of English. Within a few days, however, he met a fellow countryman who had just enlisted in a German cavalry regiment and being raised in this city. Men were badly needed in the Union army, and the requirements as to sharpness of vision were not as strict as in time of peace. The young Austrian was enrolled and served to the end of the war in the Lincoln cavalry, as the regiment was called, part of the time under Sheridan.

When he was mustered out at its close in New York city he was still ignorant of English. He had enough money to buy a ticket to East St. Louis, Ill., across the river from St. Louis, Mo.

stevedore on the St. Louis wharves. Later he was coachman, but was discharged because of his defective vision.

In his search for employment he dug graves for victims of the cholera epidemic.

During his vicissitudes he had been a voracious reader and eager student and had already begun to study law. This he went ahead with rapidly, and in 1868, four years after he landed at Castle Garden, he was admitted to the bar. He practiced for a short time, but the profession was too slow for him. He was bursting with ambition and energy and found it impossible to confine himself to the tedious routine of a young attorney. He looked about for some manner of life in which he could bring all his suppressed energies into immediate play. He found it in journalism.

He became a reporter for the Westliche Post, a St. Louis German paper edited by Carl Schurz. Within a year he had risen to city editor and later to managing editor. Still later he became part owner of the paper. In the meantime he had begun taking an active part in national and local politics. In 1880 he was elected to the Missouri legislature, though but twenty-two years old.

In 1878 he bought the St. Louis Evening Dispatch for $3,500 and absorbed the St. Louis Post. This was the beginning of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In 1883 he bought the New York World from Jay Gould. In 1884 he was elected to congress from a New York district. The duties of this position so interfered with his journalistic affairs that he resigned after a few months' service.

Since 1887 he had been an invalid, totally blind.

Mr. Pulitzer had one of the most expensive households in America. He had a home in East Seventy-third street, New York, a fine estate at Bar Harbor and another country place on Jekyll Island, off the Georgia coast. Also he usually had two or three places abroad under lease and a 1,500 ton steam yacht that added $100,000 a year to his expenditures.

Since attaining affluence Mr. Pulitzer had given considerable sums to philanthropy, chiefly in the cause of education.

Mr. Pulitzer was married in 1877 to Miss Kate Davis of Washington, a niece of Jefferson Davis. He leaves five children, Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., Ralph, Herbert, Constance and Edith.

Saved Many From Death

W. L. Mock, of Mock, Ark., believes he has saved many lives in his 25 years of experience in the drug business. "What I always like to do," he writes, "is to recommend Dr. King's New Discovery for weak, sore lungs, hard colds, hoarseness, obstinate coughs, la grippe, croup, asthma, or other bronchial affection, for I feel sure that a number of my neighbors are alive and well today because they took my advice to use it. I honestly believe it's the best throat and lung medicine that's made." Easy to prove he's right. Get a trial bottle free, or regular 50c or $1.00 bottle. Guaranteed by all druggists.

CARNEGIE IS NOT WORRIED BY STEEL SUIT

Has Plenty of Time For Readjustment of Benefactions if Necessary.

Andrew Carnegie is entertaining no fears as to the future of his philanthropies because of the government's suit for the dissolution of the Steel corporation. Mr. Carnegie was the most deeply concerned individual in the formation of the corporation. The $320,000,000 paid for his holdings in the original companies took the form of bonds secured by first mortgages on the corporation's properties. This fact has raised a question in many keenly interested quarters as to the effect reorganization would have upon Mr. Carnegie and upon the institutions to which he has already given so great a part of his fortune. His gifts have all taken the form of Steel corporation securities.

It is not known whether Mr. Carnegie has given any thought to the possible consequences to his benefactions, but it was said by some closely associated with Mr. Carnegie in a business way that there would be time and to spare for any plans that might be necessary before the suit had run its course. The suit against the Standard Oil company took five years and that against the American Tobacco company four years.

In any event, it is unlikely that the libraries Mr. Carnegie has founded will be seriously affected. Almost without exception these libraries were given upon the understanding that while the steel master might erect and equip the buildings, their maintenance was to be the affair of the recipients.

In the case of the other institutions, however, the situation is somewhat different. The Carnegie Institution for the Advancement of Science is dependent upon Mr. Carnegie's endowment, which is in Steel corporation bonds. The Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching is similarly endowed, as are the hero fund commissions he has established in the United States, England, France and Germany. The Peace foundation is in the same class.

Recess Club Is New York's Most Exclusive—250 Members.

The Recess club, composed only of millionaires, was opened recently in New York. There are more than 3,000 millionaires in New York city, but there are only 250 members of the Recess club, and the humblest of these estimates his wealth in at least eight figures. In addition to the 250 on the rolls of the club there are 140 on the waiting list.

At the top of the list are such members as J. Pierpont Morgan, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Charles M. Schwab, Jacob H. Schiff and Otto H. Kahn.

The main object of the club is to provide a restful place where members may forget their money and the worry it entails. There is not even a stock ticker where they can follow the daily fluctuations of their wealth. It is understood that such subjects as speculation and business are not to be discussed. Aside from the midday menu, the topics most encouraged are art, literature and science, subjects in

WHEN "HUBBY" IS MAID.

Chicago Experts Tell How to Button Wife's Dress.

A worried husband has appealed to a Chicago newspaper on the better way to button his wife's dress—whether to begin at the top or bottom. One expert handed him this advice:

"I have buttoned my wife's dress for a few years and find that buttoning it down the back is much better than buttoning it up the back. If you start at the top and go down you gradually get to the tightest part of a woman's dress, around the waist, while if you start at the waist line and button upward the hooks or buttons are liable to come off the dress before you get started."

Another: "The best way is to begin at the waist line, and when you get one or two buttons set the rest is easy. If you begin at the top it gets

"The curious effect sometimes produced in telegrams by want of punctuation or the omission of a single word," says a reader, "cannot fail to have struck every one. Our factory is built for quantity production. (350 complete FORD cars have been turned out in one day.) We can make 75,000 cars cheaper than we can make 40,000.

Where labor costs us one dollar, our overhead expenses cost a dollar and a half. Our factory is built to profit from quantity production. Thus, by reducing overhead cost per car we will build 75,000 cars for 1912 at a less ratio of overhead cost per car than it cost to make the 40,000 cars in 1911—though materials and labor command the same prices, and we give the public the benefit of this saving.

Material Is Rigidly Tested

Every piece of material used in the construction of all 1912 Ford Cars is chemically tested for flaws and its efficiency tried to five times any possible pressure to which it may be subjected.

The 1912 Ford Model T, while in all essential features the same Ford that has been built for several years, is a better car than ever. Several minor improvements have been added. These include improved timer, tapered rear axle, new style air cushions, hand-holes in bottom of crank case, dust proof valves. Aside from these detail changes the 1912 Ford will be the same sturdy and reliable car that has made the Ford the leader in the Automobile world. During 1911 every fourth car manufactured in the United States was a Ford. In 1912 Ford will manufacture and sell one-third of all the cars.

CAREER OF LATE JOSEPH PULITZER

Remarkable Rise From Poverty to Wealth and Power.

OWNED TWO NEWSPAPERS.

thirteen Years After Landing at New York Penniless and Unable to Speak English He Was on the Road to Riches.

The career of Joseph Pulitzer, owner of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who died recently, was a striking example of the opportunities that have been found in the United States for advancement from poverty and friendliness to wealth and power. Few who have come here to find their fortunes have been more handicapped at the start. He was without funds, had no acquaintances in this country, did not know the language and suffered from defective vision which harassed him all his life and made sad his last years, when he was compelled practically to retire from active work. Few have had struggles more severe. At thirty-one, thirteen years after landing at Castle Garden, he was the owner of a daily newspaper and on the road to riches.

Joseph Pulitzer was born in Budapest in 1847. His father was a business man, supposedly of means, but when he died, while Joseph was still a boy, it was found that the estate was very small. In order that the light not be a burden on his mother Joseph determined to enter the army. He applied to his uncle, who was a colonel in the Austrian army, but when he was examined as to physical fitness he was rejected because of the defect in one of his eyes. He went to Germany and sought to enter the Russian army, but was again rejected for the same reason. He tried to enlist in France and England, with the same result.

The civil war was in progress in this country, and he decided to come here. He exhausted his resources to pay his passage, and he landed at Castle Garden in 1864 practically penniless. He knew nobody in this country and could speak only a dozen words of English. Within a few days, however, he met a fellow countryman who had just enlisted in a German cavalry regiment and being raised in this city. Men were badly needed in the Union army, and the requirements as to sharpness of vision were not as strict as in time of peace. The young Austrian was enrolled and served to the end of the war in the Lincoln cavalry, as the regiment was called, part of the time under Sheridan.

When he was mustered out at its close in New York city he was still ignorant of English. He had enough money to buy a ticket to East St. Louis, Ill., across the river from St. Louis, Mo.

Later he was coachman, but charged because of his defective vision.

In his search for employment he dug graves for victims of the cholera epidemic.

During his vicissitudes he had been a voracious reader and eager student and had already begun to study law. This he went ahead with rapidly, and in 1868, four years after he landed at Castle Garden, he was admitted to the bar. He practiced for a short time, but the profession was too slow for him. He was bursting with ambition and energy and found it impossible to confine himself to the tedious routine of a young attorney. He looked about for some manner of life in which he could bring all his suppressed energies into immediate play. He found it in journalism.

He became a reporter for the Westliche Post, a St. Louis German paper edited by Carl Schurz. Within a year he had risen to city editor and later to managing editor. Still later he became part owner of the paper. In the meantime he had begun taking an active part in national and local politics. In 1880 he was elected to the Missouri legislature, though but twenty-two years old.

In 1878 he bought the St. Louis Evening Dispatch for $3,500 and absorbed the St. Louis Post. This was the beginning of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In 1883 he bought the New York World from Jay Gould. In 1884 he was elected to congress from a New York district. The duties of this position so interfered with his journalistic affairs that he resigned after a few months' service.

Since 1887 he had been an invalid, totally blind.

James M. Elder, After 14 Years, Takes Up Fire Insurance Business Again

"Come in a minute and I'll tell you some news," said James M. Elder as he waved to the writer, who gladly came, expecting some great scoop for the paper that day.

"I have gone back to my first love," said Mr. Elder.

"Your what?" asked the astonished news gatherer.

"Oh," said Mr. Elder, "I mean back to the fire insurance business that I used to carry on 14 years ago. I was in business at this same place for many years and sold my interest to Murphy & Valentine. Later Mr. Valentine bought out Mr. Murphy's interest and continued the business alone, selling out later to Henry L. Cohen.

"Miss Zella Burgoyne, who has had some years experience in the fire insurance business, will have immediate charge of the fire insurance department. I shall carry a line of good union companies and expect to get my share of the business. I shall continue, of course, my real estate business.

Mr. Elder's office is in the First National bank building, at 209 South Sixth street, and his friends wish him much success in his new venture.

Meeting of the Waters.
From Oct. 31 to Nov. 4, 1840, in France the Saone poured its waters into the Rhone, broke its banks, covered 60,000 acres and immersed a number of cities and villages. Six hundred and eighteen houses were carried away and many lives sacrificed. It was the first time in 238 years that the Saone had risen so high.

HALLOWEEN
DISASTER

Little Gladys Neal Narrowly Escaped
Being Badly Burned Friday Evening While

LIGHTING A JACK-O-LANTERN

Her Mother Wraps Her Own Skirts
Around the Blazing Child, Extinguishing the Flames

Little Gladys Neal, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Charles A. Neal, narrowly escaped being badly burned on Friday evening.

She was lighting a candle for her Jack-O-Lantern, when in some way her skirts caught on fire and when she reached her mother in the front part of the house, who was holding her baby, Gladys was a mass of flames.

Mrs. Neal hastily laid her baby on the floor and caught the excited child who was trying to get out of doors.
It was the work of a second for the mother to grasp the child and wrap her own skirts closely around the little girl, smothering the fire so Gladys did not receive the slightest burns.
Mrs. Neal received a badly burned right hand. Had she been only at the neighbors for a moment, the result would have been fatal for the little girl. This near disaster should be a warning to other mothers.

The Presbyterian church has re-ing service Mrs. Nels. Johnson will sing "The Homeland." The choir will sing the anthem with duet and chorus, entitled: "A Stranger at the Door."

In the evening the anthem: "In God is My Salvation" will be sung.
Miss Sherlund will be the organist in the morning and Miss Marion Op-sahl in the evening.

Mrs. E. L. Ludwig is the leader.

LOBECK SPOKE LAST NIGHT

The Alexandria Man is Touring the

The Hon. E. E. Lobeck, of Alexan-audience at the Citizens State bank hall on "Government by the People," giving in his address his view of the principles of good government and referring in large measure also to necessary temperance reforms. He has the distinction in 1908 of having been the only member of the state legislature elected on the Prohibition ticket.

Mr. Lobeck is being considered by his party representatives as the most probable candidate for governor next year. He is touring the state in behalf of the temperance movement and is speaking in conjunction with
P. J. Youngdahl, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

SUPREME COURT
DECIDES CALE CASE

In The Gregory Co., Respondent, Vs.
Louis J. Cale, Appellant Case,
Order is Affirmed

HAS A LENGTHY SYLLABUS

Defines Status of Judgment Against Bankrupt Pending Bankruptcy Proceedings, Etc.

The state supreme court has just affirmed the order in the case of the Gregory Company, respondent, vs.
Lewis J. Cale, appellant, the opinion being written by Justice Brown.

The syllabus is lengthy and it defines among other things the status of a judgment against a bankrupt pending bankruptcy proceedings and the application of the homestead exemption. It states:

"First—where property, though exempt from the general debts and obligations of the owner, is subject to the payment of a particular debt,
the creditor has the election of remedies to subject the same to the payment of his claim. (1) He may proceed in equity, setting up all the facts and have the amount of the debt decreed a specific lien upon the property; (2) he may proceed by attachment, or (3) by an execution issued upon a judgment, in an ordinary action for the recovery of the debt.

"Second—The entry and docketing
of a judgment against a bankrupt
pending the bankruptcy proceedings, and before the discharge of the bankrupt, becomes a valid lien upon real property of the bankrupt, which by reason of the homestead exemption at the time of the adjudication in bankruptcy did not pass to the bankrupt estate, but which was liable to the payment of the debt represented by the judgment, because not a part of the homestead when the debt was created; the homestead exemption having been enlarged by statute subsequent to the creation of the debt.

"Third—The subsequent discharge of the bankrupt does not in such a case annul or extinguish the judgment except so far as it imposes a personal liability upon the bankrupt.

"Fourth—The judgment is a valid lien upon the particular property, and may be enforced by special execution.

"Fifth—Though the judgment record does not disclose that the particular property is liable for its payment, that fact may be established by extrinsic evidence, an application for a special writ of execution, or other proceedings when the right to resort to the land is called in question."

MY KINGDOM FOR A HORSE

Capt. Moxie Mahlum Misses Train and Team Goes to St. Cloud
Without Him

After an evening of strenuous practice with his high school football team, Capt. Moxie Mahlum re-sired to a well earned rest. He placed the alarm clock at the head of his bed, set her half an hour ahead of time and placed the indicator at 3:30 a. m. Then he went to sleep dreaming about the big game which Brainerd high was to have with the St. Cloud Normal this afternoon at St. Cloud. In his dreams he grabbed his pillow and rushed through the defense at the foot of his bed and when 3:30 a. m. came around and the little alarm clock buzzed away, he never heard it and slept on and missed the train.

At the depot the team was in an excited frame of mind. Hoping against hope they hopped around on the cold platform in the chilly morning hours waiting for the captain who never came. They left without him, re-arranging their line-up as they traveled to St. Cloud.

At seven o'clock the captain of the Brainerd team awoke with a mighty start and looked around. He tore out of bed and down the street.
It was a case of a kingdom for a horse, anything to reach St. Cloud.
It would cost too much to charter a special train. There were no freights handy. Then a happy thought came to him. He went the rounds of the garages and hotels and then came upon H. W. Topping, of the Parker & Topping Foundry Co., who was about to return to St. Paul in his automobile. Mr. Topping generously carried the football captain to St.
Cloud and the day was saved for him.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Park Opera House

There is an attraction of superior
merit at the Opera House the latter part of this week and all lovers of exceptionally fine music, both vocal and instrumental should attend tonight
without fail. And the prices are only 15, 25 and 35cents, and an entertainment is given that is worth a dollar and more of anybody's money.
The program is given by three young ladies known as the German-American Trio, and their renditions of violin and cello selections of the most difficult classical and popular music is a delight. They are ably assisted by Mr. Hugo Lutgens, an impersonator and Swedish dialect comedian of exceptional merit.

They will appear again tonight
and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in
a sacred concert.

Following the above program are shown three films of moving pictures
that are very good, the historical reproduction of the Andrew's raiders
during the Civil war being of unusual interest and instructive and a vivid example of the horrors of war.

as being the youngest star ever turned out by Henry Savage, during his long and splendid career as one, if not the foremost producer of "American Musical Successes." In addition to her youth, Miss Hutcheson
can claim beauty, vivacity, and last but not least a studious nature. One may possess the former and feel somewhat contented and likewise assured of making one's mark in the theatrical world, but the goal to be attained by one fortunately possessed
of a studious nature, as a foundation
for the building and moulding of ones
natural talents is indeed something

NEW NOTHING ABOUT IT

County Officials Have no Knowledge of Complaint Made by Fred Johnson, of Emily

There has been no lawlessness recently in or about Emily, so far as is known in Brainerd and those of the county officials who were asked about the complaint made by Fred J. Johnson, of Emily, in his letter to the governor, declared they knew nothing about it.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

Park Opera House

There is an attraction of superior
merit at the Opera House the latter part of this week and all lovers of exceptionally fine music, both vocal and instrumental should attend tonight
without fail. And the prices are only 15, 25 and 35cents, and an entertainment is given that is worth a
dollar and more of anybody's money.
The program is given by three young ladies known as the German-American Trio, and their renditions of violin and cello selections of the most difficult classical and popular music
is a delight. They are ably assisted by Mr. Hugo Lutgens, an impersonator and Swedish dialect comedian of
exceptional merit.

They will appear again tonight
and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in
a sacred concert.

Following the above program are
shown three films of moving pictures
that are very good, the historical
reproduction of the Andrew's raiders
during the Civil war being of unusual interest and instructive and a
vivid example of the horrors of war.

"The Three Twins"

Miss Gertrude Hutcheson appearing in the Prima-Dona role of "The Three Twins Co.," the much talked of musical comedy which comes to the Brainerd Opera House for the first time next Monday, Nov. 6th, is noted
as being the youngest star ever turned out by Henry Savage, during his
long and splendid career as one, if not the foremost producer of "American Musical Successes." In addition to her youth, Miss Hutcheson
can claim beauty, vivacity, and last but not least a studious nature. One
may possess the former and feel somewhat contented and likewise assured of making one's mark in the theatrical world, but the goal to be attained by one fortunately possessed
of a studious nature, as a foundation
for the building and moulding of ones
natural talents is indeed something worth striving for. Miss Hutcheson's ambition is the Grand Opera stage and toward that goal she has already sacrificed six of her youthful years in laborious study, spending her last summers vacation in France and Italy, when she is extremely anxious to return to resume her work. Last season Mr. Savage placed her with his Eastern "Merry Widow" company to fulfill the much famed part of "Sonia" and as a consequence her scrap-book is well filled with newspaper clippings, in praise of her work, notably her wonderful high class soprano voice. Mr.

Brown is trying to arrange, through the company's second business manager, Mr. F. A. Hunt, to have Miss Hutcheson favor Brainerd music lovers with one or more Operatic renditions during the evening's entertainment. Critics have proclaimed her singing of the old favorite,
"Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Baby Mine" with its tableaux effect, protraying the seven ages of cuddling from infancy to grandpa, etc. to be one of the prettiest pieces of stage craft ever attempted.

To the Ladies of Brainerd:—

Mrs. M. M. Strickling, representative for the Spirilla Corset Co., who has been taking orders in Brainerd, will be out of the city for two weeks,
and on her return will finish her work here. 131-It

BRAINERD Will GROW! If You Help

THE NORTHWESTERN BUILDING ASSOCIATION OF FERGUS FALLS will help you to help Brainerd grow by loaning you the money to build or to buy.

The Northwestern Building Association is not a stock selling scheme or a real estate game. It is an institution of good standing, under the supervision of the best banks of the state of Minnesota, which receives the savings of those who want to borrow and pay it back in small regular payments. It takes for security first mortgages on real estate. The growth and standing of this association is shown by the tables on this page. If you want to borrow money you make an application and as soon as it is approved and the papers can be drawn and the title to your property examined, you get your money. The association has it on hand. A loan can be closed in six days.

More than 300 homes and properties being paid for through this association. No loan too big for it to handle, no loan too small to make. Every man who borrows, borrows on the same footing as every other member. There is no way so easy and so certain of paying for a home as the small regular payment. It affords its members every condition which makes their loans easy for them to handle. Loans can be paid off at any time. Partial payment can be made thus reducing the size of the monthly payments.

When you pay rent the landlord owns the home and has the rent. When you drive a nail or stop up a crack you do it for his benefit. If you own the house where you live you can constantly add to its value through your own efforts and without much expense increase your own comfort and pleasure.

Brainerd is full of men who are prosperous and have their homes paid for because they were willing to pay a little at a time. It also contains many men who could not bother to pay for a home in small payments as it would take too long; but those men are as homeless as ever. The big strike was never made.

The Northwestern Building Association loans on all classes of real estate which look good to its directors as security for the money deposited with the association.

If you want a home investigate the plans and methods of the Northwestern Building Associations. They are up to date in every way. They will meet your wants. Don't be discouraged even though you have but little money. Call or Write and let us show you what you can do.

"KATE" in "THE THREE TWINS" Opera House, Monday, Nov. 6th

"Nice and Snug."
Duckworth was such a delicate courtier he could afford to jest with a queen on a very unpleasing subject even. Once he was showing Queen Victoria over Westminster abbey. When they came to the spot where kings and queens lie Queen Victoria shivered a little and said, "I should not care to be buried here—it seems so cold and damp." "Madam," replied Duckworth, "I assure you it is perfectly dry. You would be quite nice and snug."—London Saturday Review.

Reversed.

Balked at Cold Steel
"I wouldn't let a doctor cut my foot off," said H. D. Ely, Bantam, Ohio, "although a horrible ulcer had been the plague of my life for four years. Instead I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my foot was soon completely cured." Heals Burns, Boils, Sores, Bruises, Eczema, Pimples, Corns. Surest Pile cure. 25 cents at all druggists. tts

Old Dutch Customs.
In the fishing districts and on the farms of Holland the old time Dutch customs are still to be found. The quaint costume of the women, with the ancient headdress and the full skirts, remains the pride of the Holland huisvrouw (housewife), and the men, with their wide, baggy trousers, are no less picturesque. The milkmaid, with her two milk cans, polished like silver and swung from a specially built shoulder yoke, is a feature of the street scene in any village.

A Father's Vengeance
would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bondy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attacks of kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help him," he wrote, "so at last we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. Its best kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, warn of kidney trouble that may end in dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Beware. Take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed, 50c at all druggists. tts

NAPOLEON'S FALL.

The Modern Attila Crushed by His Streak of Insanity.

A VICTIM OF MEGALOMANIA.

Envious of Alexander the Great, He Aimed to Rule the Whole World, and France Sacrificed a Million Men on the Altar of His Monomania.

Were readers of history asked today what three human characters have been most prominent in making the history of the world there could probably be great diversity of opinion as to two of such personages, but as to the third the general agreement could probably point to Napoleon Bonaparte. T. P. O'Connor, who for many years has made a study of the modern Attila, as he was called by his contemporaries, presents in his London magazine an article entitled "The Insanity of Napoleon's Genius," in which he shows him to be a victim of megalomania, that form of mental alienation in which the patient is possessed of grotesque hallucinations.

Mr. O'Connor discards the idea that Napoleon because of his gigantic power for work had a perfect physique and invulnerable health. He suffered as a child from extreme nervousness, later from facial neuralgia. He had a nervous twitching at the mouth and the right shoulder. After Toulon he long suffered from a painful and wasting cutaneous disease, and at times he had fits of an epileptic character. As he was about to leave Strassburg in 1805 on the way to the mighty victory over General Mack at Ulm he had one of these spasms. After dinner on the day he was leaving, says Talleyrand in his memoirs, the emperor had called him into his room. There Talleyrand found him gasping for breath. "I tore off his cravat, for he seemed likely to choke. He did not vomit, but slobbered and foamed. M. de Remusat, first gentleman in waiting, who had also come into the room, handed him water, and I sprinkled him with eau de cologne. He was suffering from some sort of cramp, which passed off in a quarter of an hour. We laid him in an armchair. He began to speak, but his dress right, commanded us to observe the strictest secrecy, and half an hour later he was on his way to Carlsruhe."

Another sign of the abnormal in Napoleon was his intense irritability, and often there came a nervous breakdown that reduced him to the condition of a hysterical woman. This irritability sometimes took the form of fits of weeping. He would fly into a passion on the slightest provocation. In his impatience he tore many a garment to pieces because it inconvenienced him in some trifling way. He had an inner melancholy that never left him. While he talked of death, Napoleon never had any serious intention of taking his own life. While a man of dreams, he was a man of action. Success did not make this dreamer more cheerful. He had strange moments of bitterness and hatred and a desire to inflict pain. For instance, he would say to a lady after asking her name, "Dear me, I was told you were pretty" or to an elderly gentleman, "You have not much longer to live."

It was comparatively early in his career that his insane desire to rule not France, not even Europe, but all the world, took possession of him. The real reason for his crushing downfall is to be found in this megalomania. He himself caused his downfall. Napoleon alone could have conquered Napoleon, and it was this megalomania that undid him.

There was his dream of the control of Europe. "There will," he said to his intimates while he was still first consul, "be no peace in Europe till it is under the command of a single leader, under one emperor, with kings for his officers, who will distribute kingdoms to his generals, making one king of Bavaria, one landman of Switzerland, another stadtholder of Holland and giving them all official posts in the imperial household, such as grand cup bearer, grand chamberlain, grand master of the hounds, etc."

Napoleon did place kings in several countries and controlled the policy of nearly every country of Europe—a wonderful achievement for the poverty stricken charity boy who got his education at Brienne at the expense of his sovereign. He might have remained the king of kings in Europe had he been satisfied with that awful height. But he was not satisfied; he never was satisfied. After Europe there was Asia.

On the day he was crowned emperor in December, 1804, he said to his minister of marine: "I grant you my career has been brilliant and I have risen high. But what a difference from ancient times! Look at Alexander the Great! After he had conquered Asia he declared himself the son of Jupiter, and, except his mother Olympias, Aristotle and a few Athenian pedants, the east believed him. Nowadays if I were to declare myself the son of the Everlasting Father there isn't a fishwife but would hiss me! The nations are much too enlightened now, and nothing great is left to do."

"And France," says Mr. O'Connor, in conclusion, "sacrificed a million lives to the monomania of a megalomaniac. What tragedy in history is so gigantic, so appalling, so pitiful, in a sense so ironic?"

In His Dreams.
Hewitt—When I was on the boat the other night I had a lower berth, but I dreamed I was sleeping in the upper berth. Jewett—Sort of overslept yourself, eh?—Exchange.

The Old Man Was Willing.
He—I told your father I could not live without you. She—And what did he say? He—Oh, he offered to pay my funeral expenses.—Boston Transcript.

Beware of the man who offers you advice at the expense of a mutual friend.

A FOREST RANGER HERO.

Tragic Incident of the Forest Fires of 1910 in Idaho.

Overton W. Price, vice president of the National Conservation association, in his book "The Land We Live In" tells this story of a heroic forest ranger:

"The summer of 1910 by reason of great drought and unusually high winds was the worst for forest fires that the west has ever known. In Montana, Idaho and Oregon the danger was greatest."

"On the Coeur d'Alene national forest, in northern Idaho, Ranger Pulaski had under him forty men, who after many hours of hard work had got a big fire practically under control. Suddenly the wind strengthened until it blew a gale. It immediately became a question of saving the lives of the men. The fire fighters were in a deep forest many miles from a railroad and far from any clearing."

"Pulaski remembered that within a mile of where they were working there was an abandoned mine shaft running back about forty feet into the hillside. He rushed his men to the shaft as quickly as possible and told them as they passed through their camp to catch up their blankets as they ran. The shaft reached Pulaski buried his men into it and, packed like sardines, they filled it up. Pulaski placed himself at the opening, across which he stretched a blanket."

"Within a few minutes after the men were in the shaft the fire came. The blanket at the opening caught, and Pulaski jerked it away and hung up another, which caught in its turn. The blanket caught again and again, and each time Pulaski replaced it until toward the last he held the blanket across the opening with his bare hands."

"The shaft grew hotter and hotter, and the smoke and fumes grew thicker and thicker until the men's sufferings were almost beyond human endurance. They began to break for the opening. Pulaski, whose strength was great, like his courage, for awhile forced them back. Seeing that he would soon be overpowered and that his men would rush to their certain death, he drew his revolver and said that he would kill the first man who broke away."

"In perhaps twenty minutes the worst of the fire passed by. Five of the men in the shaft were dead from suffocation; the thirty-five others were alive. Pulaski was blinded and seriously burned upon the face and arms. It was three months before his sight was partly restored. Had not his heroism and presence of mind been what they were he would have lost all of his men instead of five. That is the kind of men there are in the forest service."

SAVAGE FISH.

Peral Have Been Known to Tear an Alligator to Pieces.

The most savage and bloodthirsty fish in all the waters of the earth are the peral, declares Charles Livingston Bull in "Under the Roof of the Jungle." They are from twelve to fourteen inches in length and look not unlike the northern bass, although more powerfully built. They have been known to attack an alligator, discover a rent in the skin of the great reptile and tear and devour him until nothing but his bones and rough skin was left.

The peral are silvery green in color. Their thick, muscular jaws are armed with rows of teeth like those of a crosscut saw, sharp and triangular and fitting exactly together. These jaws and teeth are most formidable, being able to cut to pieces anything less hard than the shell of a tortoise. The lower lobe of the tail is longer than the upper one and all the fins short, giving the impression, as do the thick, rounded body and head, of great strength.

It is fortunate that in all the length and breadth of northern South America these rapacious little murderers are found only in widely scattered localities. Thus one pool will harbor a great school of them, while for miles in either direction up or down the same stream there may not be another individual.

Were it not for this peculiar localization the jungles would be nearly stripped of animal life, for beasts and birds and reptiles must drink, and, while those of a few species can get all the water they need from the dew on the leaves in the morning, by far the greater number must come to the streams and pools. Even creatures like that master fisherman, the otter, must give the peral a wide berth, and no other fish can inhabit the same waters.

They have been known to leap a foot out of water and bite a piece out of a man's hand as he was stooping to dip up a drink.

GREAT APPLE CROP THIS YEAR

General Improvement in Many Sections, According to Report.

Apple is king this year, according to the American Agriculturist, the issue of which, containing completed reports on the apple crop, has just appeared. There has been a general improvement in all sections. In Pennsylvania, for instance, the yield is 3,200,000 barrels as against 2,000,000 in 1910. Other states show the same increase.

The 1911 crop throughout the country is placed at 30,000,000 barrels, or one-fifth larger than that of 1909 or of 1910. New York has 5,200,000 barrels this year compared with 3,900,000 in 1910; Ohio, 2,400,000 against 1,250,000 the previous year; Michigan, 2,000,000 against 1,200,000; Maine, 1,350,000 against 900,000. New England as a whole has 3,150,000 against 2,850,000 in 1910; in the middle states the yield is 14,000,000 against 8,750,000 a year ago, while in the central west the yield is 2,950,000 against 1,775,000.

Colorado has a good crop, but farther west and northwest there is no material improvement. In the middle south the yield is only fair, but includes many choice apples, particularly in such states as the Virginias.

1912 BUICK 1912

In making our 1912 announcement we do so with the assurance that we have something to offer the automobile buying public far in excess of anything ever offered before for the same amount of money, or anywhere near it. The BUICK cars for 1912 will be the greatest product emanating from the best that brains and money can produce. ENGINEERS THE WORLD OVER have conceded that the valve in the head type motor is coming to the front by leaps and bounds, simply on account of its POWER, SPEED, SIMPLICITY and DURABILITY.

THE 1912 FEATURES ARE MANY ## VOTES LIE JUSTIFIABLE.

Bible Class Decides Truth Need Not Be Told at All Times.

By a vote of the majority of the members of the First Baptist church Bible class of Columbus, Ind., it was decided that the telling of a lie is sometimes justifiable. The discussion of the question "Is a lie ever justifiable?" was participated in by a number of the members, and sharp differences of opinion developed.

The Rev. F. L. Hardy, pastor of the church and teacher of the class, related that his mother came near dying recently, and his physician advised him to cable for his sister, who is a teacher in Honolulu. When Mrs. Hardy heard that her daughter was coming she asked the minister if he had sent her a cable. The minister said he did not lie outright, but he admitted that he evaded the question in such a way that he might as well have lied in a straightforward manner. He said he dreaded to tell his mother he had cabled for his sister for fear the knowledge that she was so ill would make her worse.

The class agreed that the action of the minister in failing to tell the truth was justified.

"Nice and Snug."

Duckworth was such a delicate courtier he could afford to jest with a queen on a very unpleasant subject even. Once he was showing Queen Victoria over Westminster abbey. When they came to the spot where kings and queens lie Queen Victoria shivered a little and said, "I should not care to be buried here—it seems so cold and damp." "Madam," replied Duckworth, "I assure you it is perfectly dry. You would be quite nice and snug."—London Saturday Review.

Old Dutch Customs.

In the fishing districts and on the farms of Holland the old time Dutch customs are still to be found. The milkmaid, with her two milk cans, polished like silver and swung from a specially built shoulder yoke, is a feature of the street scene in any village.

NAPOLEON'S FALL.

The Modern Attila Crushed by His Streak of Insanity.

A VICTIM OF MEGALOMANIA.

Envious of Alexander the Great, He Aimed to Rule the Whole World, and France Sacrificed a Million Men on the Altar of His Monomania.

Were readers of history asked today what three human characters have been most prominent in making the history of the world there could probably be great diversity of opinion as to two of such personages, but as to the third the general agreement could probably point to Napoleon Bonaparte. T. P. O'Connor, who for many years has made a study of the modern Attila, as he was called by his contemporaries, presents in his London magazine an article entitled "The Insanity of Napoleon's Genius," in which he shows him to be a victim of megalomania, that form of mental alienation in which the patient is possessed of gaudiose hallucinations.

Mr. O'Connor discards the idea that Napoleon because of his gigantic power for work had a perfect physique and invulnerable health. He suffered as a child from extreme nervousness, later from facial neuralgia. He had a nervous twitching at the mouth and the right shoulder. After Toulon he long suffered from a painful and wasting cutaneous disease, and at times he had fits of an epileptic character. As he was about to leave Strassburg in 1805 on the way to the mighty victory over General Mack at Ulm he had one of these spasms. After dinner on the day he was leaving, says Talleyrand in his memoirs, the emperor had called him into his room. There Talleyrand found him gasping for breath. "I tore off his cravat, for he seemed like to choke. He did not vomit, but slobbered and foamed. M. de Remusat, first gentleman in waiting, who had also come into the room, handed him water, and I sprinkled him with eau de Cologne. He was suffering from some sort of cramp, which passed off in a quarter of an hour. We laid him in an armchair. He began to speak, but his dress right, commanded us to observe the strictest secrecy, and half an hour later he was on his way to Carlsruhe."

Another sign of the abnormal in Napoleon was his intense irritability, and often there came a nervous breakdown that reduced him to the condition of a hysterical woman. This irritability sometimes took the form of fits of weeping. He would fly into a passion on the slightest provocation. In his impatience he tore many a garment to pieces because it inconvenienced him in some trifling way. He had an inner melancholy that never left him. While he talked of death, Napoleon never had any serious intention of taking his own life. He never lost his grasp of life. While a man of dreams, he was a man of action. Success did not make this dreamer more cheerful. He had strange moments of bitterness and hatred and a desire to inflict pain. For instance, he would say to a lady after asking her name, "Dear me, I was told you were pretty!" or to an elderly gentleman, "You have not much longer to live."

It was comparatively early in his career that his insane desire to rule not France, not even Europe, but all the world, took possession of him. The real reason for his crushing downfall is to be found in this megalomania. He himself caused his downfall. Napoleon alone could have conquered Napoleon, and it was this megalomania that undid him. There was his dream of the control of Europe. "There will," he said to his intimates while he was still first consul, "no peace in Europe till it is under the command of a single leader, under one emperor, with kings for his officers, who will distribute kingdoms to his generals, making one king of Bavaria, one landman of Switzerland, another stadtholder of Holland and giving them all official posts in the imperial household, such as grand cup bearer, grand chamberlain, grand master of the bounds, etc."

Napoleon did place kings in several countries and controlled the policy of nearly every country of Europe—a wonderful achievement for the poverty stricken charity boy who got his education at Brienne at the expense of his sovereign. He might have remained the king of kings in Europe had he been satisfied with that awful height. But he was not satisfied; he never was satisfied. After Europe there was Asia. On the day he was crowned emperor in December, 1804, he said to his minister of marine: "I grant you my career has been brilliant and I have risen high. But what a difference from ancient times! Look at Alexander the Great! After he had conquered Asia he declared himself the son of Jupiter, and, except his mother Olympias, Aristotle and a few Athenian pedants, the east believed him. Nowadays if I were to declare myself the son of the Everlasting Father there isn't a fishwife but would hiss me! The nations are much too enlightened now, and nothing great is left to do."

"And France," says Mr. O'Connor, in conclusion, "sacrificed a million lives to the monomania of a megalomaniac. What tragedy in history is so gigantic, so appalling, so pitiful, in a sense so ironic?"

A FOREST RANGER HERO.

Tragic Incident of the Forest Fires of 1910 in Idaho.

Overton W. Price, vice president of the National Conservation association, in his book "The Land We Live In" tells this story of a heroic forest ranger:

"The summer of 1910 by reason of great drought and unusually high winds was the worst for forest fires that the west has ever known. In Montana, Idaho and Oregon the danger was greatest."

"On the Coeur d'Alene national forest, in northern Idaho, Ranger Pulaski had under him forty men, who after many hours of hard work had got a big fire practically under control. Suddenly the wind strengthened until it blew a gale. It immediately became a question of saving the lives of the men. The fire fighters were in a deep forest many miles from a railroad and far from any clearing."

"Pulaski remembered that within a mile of where they were working there was an abandoned mine shaft running back about forty feet into the hillside. He rushed his men to the shaft as quickly as possible and told them as they passed through their camp to catch up their blankets as they ran. The shaft reached Pulaski buried his men into it and, packed like sardines, they filled it up. Pulaski placed himself at the opening, across which he stretched a blanket."

"Within a few minutes after the men were in the shaft the fire came. The blanket at the opening caught, and Pulaski jerked it away and hung up another, which caught in its turn. The blanket caught again and again, and each time Pulaski replaced it until toward the last he held the blanket across the opening with his bare hands."

"The shaft grew hotter and hotter, and the smoke and fumes grew thicker and thicker until the men's sufferings were almost beyond human endurance. They began to break for the opening. Pulaski, whose strength was great, like his courage, for awhile forced them back. Seeing that he would soon be overpowered and that his men would rush to their certain death, he drew his revolver and said that he would kill the first man who broke away."

"In perhaps twenty minutes the worst of the fire passed by. Five of the men in the shaft were dead from suffocation; the thirty-five others were alive. Pulaski was blinded and seriously burned upon the face and arms. It was three months before his sight was partly restored. Had not his heroism and presence of mind been what they were he would have lost all of his men instead of five. That is the kind of men there are in the forest service."

SAVAGE FISH.

Peral Have Been Known to Tear an Alligator to Pieces.

The most savage and bloodthirsty fish in all the waters of the earth are the peral, declares Charles Livingston Bull in "Under the Roof of the Jungle." They are from twelve to fourteen inches in length and look not unlike the northern bass, although more powerfully built. They have been known to attack an alligator, discover a rent in the skin of the great reptile and tear and devour him until nothing but his bones and rough skin was left.

The peral are silvery green in color. Their thick, muscular jaws are armed with rows of teeth like those of a crocodile, sharp and triangular and fitting exactly together. These jaws and teeth are most formidable, being able to cut to pieces anything less hard than the shell of a tortoise. The lower lobe of the tail is longer than the upper one and all the fins short, giving the impression, as do the thick, rounded body and head, of great strength.

It is fortunate that in all the length and breadth of northern South America these rapacious little murderers are found only in widely scattered localities. Thus one pool will harbor a great school of them, while for miles in other direction up or down the same stream there may not be another individual.

Were it not for this peculiar localization the jungles would be nearly stripped of animal life, for beasts and birds and reptiles must drink, and while those of a few species can get all the water they need from the dew on the leaves in the morning, by far the greater number must come to the streams and pools. Even creatures like that master fisherman, the otter, must give the peral a wide berth, and no other fish can inhabit the same waters.

They have been known to leap a foot out of water and bite a piece out of a man's hand as he was stooping to dip up a drink.

GREAT APPLE CROP THIS YEAR

General Improvement in Many Sections, According to Report.

Apple is king this year, according to the American Agriculturist, the issue of which, containing completed reports on the apple crop, has just appeared. There has been a general improvement in all sections. In Pennsylvania, for instance, the yield is 3,200,000 barrels as against 2,000,000 in 1910. Other states show the same increase.

The 1911 crop throughout the country is placed at 30,000,000 barrels, or one-fifth larger than that of 1909 or of 1910. New York has 5,200,000 barrels this year compared with 3,600,000 in 1910; Ohio, 2,400,000 against 1,250,000 the previous year; Michigan, 2,000,000 against 1,200,000; Maine, 1,350,000 against 900,000. New England as a whole has 3,150,000 against 2,350,000 in 1910; in the middle states the yield is 14,000,000 against 8,750,000 a year ago, while in the central west the yield is 2,050,000 against 1,775,000.

Colorado has a good crop, but farther west and northwest there is no material improvement. In the middle south the yield is only fair, but includes many choice apples, particularly in such states as the Virginias.

Pockets Make the Man.
Mrs. John Lane, in a volume of essays called "Talk of the Town," takes an ingenious way to prove that mentally woman is superior to man:

Just consider: The most ordinary kind of man has at least a dozen pockets, while a woman of transcendent intellect generally has none, or, if she has one, it is where she can't get at it. Now, try to imagine a man doing his errands with a purse, handkerchief and shopping list in one hand, the tail of his skirt in the other, his umbrella under one arm, meanwhile making an effort to keep his head clear for business problems and at the same time keeping a wary eye out for motors. He couldn't do it! There really is no doubt that man owes his superiority to women entirely to his pockets.

Accent on the "Know."
Marks—If you had to live life over again would you marry the same woman? Parks—You just bet I would. I know what she is, and women are too uncertain for me to experiment with another one.—Exchange.OSTEOPATH

Strange Industries In China.
In Taohow our correspondent saw some strange industries. One was the keeping of large stags, as big as a fair sized horse, reared for the sake of their horns, which are cut off every summer and sold for as much as $35 gold for use as medicine. The horns are soft, and the softer it is when removed the higher the price realized. The other was the raising of the machi, a sort of large pheasant, the tail feathers of which are very valuable, as they are needed for the dress hats of mandarins. Timber is very plentiful in this district and is sent away by raft to all parts.—North China News.Touching.
Mr. Newlwyed (reading letter from his wife at seaside)—My own darling—a thousand kisses—could you send me $50 at once? Thank you so much. I won't ask for any more until I write again. I will try and make that last until I need some more. If you could send me $75 instead of $50 it would save me writing before next week. I have to pay 2 cents for every stamp I use. The extortion of these hotel keepers is something frightful. Good-by, love.—Brooklyn Citizen.The Writing Mania.
The itch for scribbling is proverbial, undying in every slave of the pen.—Hall Caine.

ALL MUST HAVE LICENSES

All Big Game Hunters, Whether Hunting in or Out of County, Must Have Licenses

There have never been so many inquiries made about hunting and the laws which govern as at the present time. First came the question about how many deer each hunter was entitled to and when that was disposed of by deciding it meant one deer for each hunter some one questioned the idea of having to get a big game license if he was only hunting in his own county.

The point is that every hunter must have a big game license and it makes no difference whether he hunt in Crow Wing county or in the adjoining counties, he must have the necessary license.

THREE GREAT VIRTUES.

There are three great virtues to which every one should be dedicated—the virtue of civilization, which is politeness; the virtue of morality, which is conscientiousness, and the virtue of religion, which is humility.

The Rayo Lamp

The Lamp That Saves The Eyes

Children naturally never think of possible strain on their eyesight when poring over a fascinating book.

It is up to you to see they do not ruin their young eyes these long evenings by reading under a poor light.

The Rayo Lamp is an insurance against eye troubles, alike for young and old.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp, but it is constructed on the soundest scientific principles, and there is not a better lamp made at any price.

It is easy on the eye because its light is so soft and white and widely diffused. And a Rayo Lamp never flickers.

Easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and rewick. Solid brass throughout, with handsome nickel finish; also in many other styles and finishes.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of the

A man once ran for office, and after a very close election the returns showed that he had been elected by a few votes. A friend with whom he had been discussing the matter asked: "What makes you think that all the ballots were counted?"

"You see," replied the successful candidate, "I'm judging from the number of fellows who've come around asking for a job on the ground that they voted for me."—New York Times.

His Affliction.
A teacher had told a class of juvenile pupils that Milton, the poet, was blind. The next day she asked if any of them could remember what Milton's great affliction was.

"Yes'm," replied one little fellow; "he was a poet."—Christian Register.

NOT SALTS, OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No Odds how Sick Your Stomach; how Hard Your Headaches or how Bilious—Cascarets Make You Feel Great

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

"Keep your seat, my dear," said the aviator. "That's Lake Erie."—Youngstown Telegram.

Canaries' Toes and Love Birds.

"I have been interested for a long time in watching the love birds at the Bronx zoo," said a visitor. "The male and the female sit side by side on their perch all day and snuggle up. They rub their beaks together and stroke each other's head exactly as though they were making love. The other day I missed them when I went to their old cage. I asked the keeper about them."

"We had to change them to another cage," said he. "You see, they were right next to the canaries, and frequently we would find the latter's toes bitten off. Those love birds look very gentle and affectionate, but they can't resist canaries' toes."—New York Sun.

Pockets Make the Man.
Mrs. John Lane, in a volume of essays called "Talk of the Town," takes an ingenious way to prove that mentally woman is superior to man.

Just consider: The most ordinary kind of man has at least a dozen pockets, while a woman of transcendent intellect generally has none, or if she has one, it is where she can't get at it. Now, try to imagine a man doing his errands with a purse, handkerchief and shopping list in one hand, the tail of his skirt in the other, his umbrella under one arm, meanwhile making an effort to keep his head clear for business problems and at the same time keeping a wary eye out for motorists. He couldn't do it! There really is no doubt that man owes his superiority to women entirely to his pockets.

Marks—If you had to live life over again would you marry the same woman? Parks—You just bet I would. I know what she is, and women are too uncertain for me to experiment with another one.—Exchange.

Strange Industries in China.

In Taichow our correspondent saw some strange industries. One was the keeping of large stags, as big as a fair sized horse, reared for the sake of their horns, which are cut off every summer and sold for as much as $35 gold for use as medicine. The horns are soft, and the softer it is when removed the higher the price realized. The other was the raising of the manchi, a sort of large pheasant, the tail feathers of which are very valuable, as they are needed for the dress hats of mandarins. Timber is very plentiful in this district and is sent away by raft to all parts.—North China News.

Touching.

Mr. Newlwyed (reading letter from his wife at seaside)—My own darling—a thousand kisses—could you send me $50 at once? Thank you so much. I won't ask for any more until I write again. I will try and make that last until I need some more. If you could send me $75 instead of $50 it would save me writing before next week. I have to pay 2 cents for every stamp I use. The extortion of these hotel keepers is something frightful. Good-by, lovey.—Brooklyn Citizen.

The Writing Mania.

The itch for scribbling is proverbially undying in every slave of the pen.—Hall Caine.

ALL MUST HAVE LICENSES

All Big Game Hunters, Whether Hunting in or Out of County, Must Have Licenses

There have never been so many inquiries made about hunting and the laws which govern as at the present time. First came the question about how many deer each hunter was entitled to and when that was disposed of by deciding it meant one deer for each hunter some one questioned the idea of having to get a big game license if he was only hunting in his own county.

The point is that every hunter must have a big game license and it makes no difference whether he hunt in Crow Wing county or in the adjoining counties, he must have the necessary license.

THREE GREAT VIRTUES.

There are three great virtues to which every one should be dedicated—the virtue of civilization, which is politeness; the virtue of morality, which is conscientiousness, and the virtue of religion, which is humility.
